Our World is Full of Kind People

by Alina, 17 years old, Russia

You can often hear that our world has become completely disastrous and unfriendly, but I don't think so. In my opinion, we are surrounded by a lot of kind people, and here is my story to confirm this.

Some time ago I met with my friend at a local cafeteria. It was a hot sunny day and we decided to go shopping after a quick bite. As soon as we finished our meal and were ready to leave for the shopping center, my friend Vicka noticed someone dressed in green and immediately ran to her. The two were very excited to meet and began talking. I was curious who this woman was and Vicka told me an amazing story...

When Vicka was a child, she got into a bad accident and was hospitalized right away. The doctors said that she was in critical condition and would not survive without an urgent blood transfusion, but the blood group of her family members did not match hers. There was less and less time left.

Luckily, one of the hospital volunteers overheard about Vicka's situation and immediately suggested to donate her blood which was a match. Thus, that young lady saved my friend, giving her the second chance. The unexpected meeting with her in a cafeteria became another reason for Vicka to heartily thank her savior.

For me, this amazing story is another confirmation that there are still lots of kind-hearted people around us and this gives me hope.

Christopher D'Olier Reeve

(September 25, 1952 – October 10, 2004)

Was an American actor, director, and activist

After being paralyzed in an accident, actor Christopher Reeve became an activist for those who suffered spinal injuries. He became director of the American Paralysis Association and vice president of the National Disability Organization. He also founded a Christopher & Dana Reeve Research Center. His foundation provides funding for researchers who want to develop treatments or even cure paralysis resulting from a spinal cord injury.

I chose this personality, because I watched the movie "SUPERMAN", but foremost because I was impressed that Christopher helped people with the same spinal disability.

Loving and Remembering Our Ancestors.

By Karel, 12 years old,
The Czech Republic

These photos were taken when I visited with my grandmother and old aunts the cemetery where our ancestors are buried. I would like to show you how we worship our ancestors. We have cemeteries where we go several times a year. We bring flowers and light candles. Every grave is tidy and clean, and people remember their loved ones. My grandmother often tells me about her childhood and her grandmother. And my oldest aunt is 94 years old.
